FACULTY POSITION
Evangelism and Global Mission

Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary is seeking a faculty member to teach in the areas of evangelism and global mission. This person will occupy the William A. Benfield Professorship of Evangelism and Global Mission.

Applicants should have a Ph.D. or comparable degree in missiology or another appropriate field of theological study. Applications will also be considered from degree-candidates who are in the final stages of their work. Applications from women and from minority racial-ethnic candidates are especially encouraged.

This person will be expected to teach M.Div, M.A., M.A.C.E., M.A.M.F.T., Th.M., and D.Min. students. This faculty member should be able to relate the history and theology of evangelism and global mission to contemporary issues confronting the church's witness in the United States and other parts of the world. Parish experience in this country or in other countries is strongly desirable.

This person should have a strong interest in preparing candidates for the Christian ministry. This person should be committed to helping students understand the church's evangelical and ecumenical calling and to relating evangelism and global mission with other areas of the theological curriculum.

Rank is negotiable on the basis of experience; appointment will begin in the fall of 1997.

Louisville Seminary follows EEO guidelines and affirmative action procedures. Send dossiers and a list of references to President John M. Mulder, 1044 Alta Vista Road, Louisville, KY 40205-1798.

Deadline: January 1, 1997.
